Remarks: Letters of invitation to the DCI Discussion Dinner on 20 September. Brian Berry, of Harvard, is a geographer who specializes in urbanization. Joan Nelson of Johns Hopkins is another well known authority. Nelle Temple is a Ph.D. candidate who was recommended to us by Wayne Cornelius of MIT (currently at the Wilson Center), who said he has been working on another subject for several years. Nelle Temple is also known to [redacted] who also recommends her. She is working currently as an assistant to Katherine Graham, chairman of the Washington Post Company. Samuel Eaton is our man from State and Mr. Donald Sherk is the Treasury representative.

Dear Dr. Nelson:

I look forward to seeing you for an evening of discussion and dinner at the Central Intelligence Agency Headquarters on Thursday, 20 September. Our subject will be the impact upon local political stability of the rapid urbanization taking place in many of the less developed countries. We should examine as comprehensively as we can the social, economic, and political forces unleashed by exploding urban growth. As you know, these forces often threaten political stability in the affected countries and demand the attention of US policymakers.

I understand you have agreed to lead off the discussion. After that we shall all have our say. I shall be delighted if our discussion turns up facets of the subject that have not been receiving the attention they deserve.

The plan for the evening is as follows: The company will assemble in my conference room in the CIA Headquarters Building in Langley, 7D64, between 5:30 and 6:00. Refreshments will be served. Our discussion will begin at 6:00 and continue until 7:00 until dinner will be served. After dinner we shall resume discussion and continue until 8:30 or so, as the intensity of our interest dictates. The company will be small, with four outside guests and ten insiders, to facilitate an exchange in which all may participate.

I have asked [redacted] of my Academic Relations Staff to complete the arrangements for the evening. Please call them if you need further information or any assistance. They may be reached on [redacted]

Yours sincerely,
